WHAT IS THE TYUMEN REGION?

 The Tyumen region is the connecting link between the East and West and it is the oil and gas industrial region in the North and the Urals.

 The region is inherently strategic because it is the shortest access route to the largest oil, gas and infrastructure projects of the Khanty-Mansiysk and the Yamal-Nenets Autonomous districts.

The Moscow-Vladivostok road that runs through the region also forms part of the Berlin-Beijing corridor.

The trans-Siberian railway connects the area with other regional centers of Russia.

There are regular direct international flights from Roshino airport (Tyumen) to Germany, Azerbaijan, Uzbekistan, Armenia and Tajikistan, as well as 10 flights to Moscow daily. The flight time to Moscow is 2 hours and 40 minutes.

Resources:

The region has Russia's largest reserves of peat (2.6 billion tons).

Timber reserves are estimated at 924 million cubic meters. Potential harvest volume is up to 15.6 million cubic meters per year.

There are substantial reserves of mortar sand (442 million cubic meters) and clay (397 million cubic meters).

There are 37 active hydrocarbon deposits. Predicted resource volume in the South of the region is estimated at 1.8 billion tons.

There is a significant source of mineral water (25 thousand cubic meters per day) in the region.

Why you should choose Tyumen region?

Major international and Russian companies trust us:

We have major oil and gas companies and research institutes located in the region:
